

What Do Online Tutors Do?

An Online Tutor is Qualified to Teach Students

A tutor should be formally trained, and many certified teachers tutor on the side, before and after retirement.

Does the tutor have fingerprint clearance?

Do You Know What to Look for in a Tutor?

A Tutor should have expertise in the subject area they tutor

Does the online tutor work with your child to determine which strategies will help them, OR is the tutor fixed on teaching a specific 'method'? Does the tutor frequently assess your child's progress?

Does the online tutor use positive behavior strategies to motivate your child?

Does the tutor use engaging materials? Look for a variety of types of tutoring materials for instruction such as online adapted books, activities, and learning games.

Does your child seem to enjoy their online tutoring experience? Does your child look forward to their online tutoring sessions?

Is your child's online tutoring one-on-one, face-to-face with the tutor via video conferencing in real-time?

Does the online tutor provide feedback to parents with helpful suggestions?

Teaching Style

“Reading success is the foundation to education and the most important vehicle as we travel our life journeys to self-discovery.”

Mrs. Cetone’s style is encouragement for all, patience, and a compassionate focus on those who struggle to read.

We are not born with a reading ‘gene’. Reading is a learned skill and starts at birth with read-aloud books to introduce children to the sound of language, the structure of language, and development of vocabulary.

The actual ‘process’ of reading begins in Kindergarten and is expected to be proficient by end of third grade when the focus transitions from ‘learning to read’ to ‘reading to learn’.

Mrs. Cetone uses a variety of ‘best practices’ for teaching reading and reading tutoring.

Guided reading along with a variety of supplemental, brain-researched processes such as the Lindamood-Bell Learning Processes[®], which she has adapted to online format, levelled readers for your child’s instructional reading ability level, and online practice activities for skill development.

DISCLAIMER: Mrs. Cetone is not a certified Lindamood-Bell provider. She adheres to informal, supplemental, research-based reading assessment and reading intervention services. She does not provide a ‘clinical diagnosis’.

Online Services to Fit Your Schedule

All Services Begin with Assessment

Prior to any reading services your child will be administered an online face-to-face, one-on-one, supplemental, research based, informal reading assessment with Mrs. Cetone. Cost is $45.00.

Parents are provided a summary report with suggestions for their child including any additional tutoring services. Tutoring fees are $45.00 per hour which includes $10.00 for prep time and materials designed for your child.

All tutoring services are given in either 4-week blocks or 6-week blocks. No exceptions. Sessions are 30-40 minutes in length, either twice, three, or four times per week. Reading growth can only be measured with consistent and frequent sessions.

Reading services are provided year-round to fit your schedule! Mrs. Cetone gives frequent feedback to parents, along with helpful tips.
